Biographical Information

Otis James Goodwyn (O.J.) was born on December 15, 1920, at Warrior Hospital in Cullman County, Alabama. The son of Andrew Sylvester and Thela Quattlebaum Goodwyn, O.J. was raised on a farm near Sipsey in Walker County. Goodwyn worked raising and selling vegetables, and with his father in a blacksmith shop in Sipsey. Goodwyn later worked summers in the local coalmines in the area during high school. Following his graduation in 1939 from Walker County High School in Jasper, Alabama, Goodwyn attended the University of Alabama. Goodwyn worked his way through as a furnace stoker in the University's central heating plant. Goodwyn also practiced barbering "unofficially" before being forced to stop, following complaints by local barbers that he was undercutting their prices and their business.

After this graduation with a bachelor's degree of science in Commerce and Business Administration, Goodwyn entered the army sometime in 1943. Goodwyn was stationed at Fort Warren, Wyoming, where he served as a demolitions instructor. While stationed at Fort Warren, Goodwyn met and married Mary Chalmers Hair of Sheridan, Wyoming. They were married on April 11, 1945. The Goodwyn's were to have two children-Otis James Jr. born on May 26, 1947, and Susan Anne born on February 9, 1949. Upon the end of the war, the Goodwyn's returned to the University of Alabama where O.J. was admitted into law school. While studying law, Goodwyn was employed by the law library and by the National Youth Administration as an interviewer. After serving as president of his class, Goodwyn received his Juris Doctorate in 1949.

The Goodwyn's moved to Montgomery, where Goodwyn began his legal career by serving as staff attorney for the State Department of Industrial Relations. A great deal of his work involved unemployment claims. In 1951, Goodwyn joined with Maury Smith to establish a private practice. William Bowman later joined the firm. To supplement his income, Goodwyn taught at Jones Law School during its evening sessions. An interest in government drew Goodwyn into politics. He was elected to the Alabama State House of Representatives in 1954, and was re-elected in 1958 and 1962. His work as a representative for Montgomery earned him the recognition of his peers and the press. Goodwyn was voted the "Outstanding Freshmen Representative" by the Alabama Press Association in 1955. In 1959, he was recognized as the hardest working member of the House. In 1965, Goodwyn was recognized as the House's outstanding member.

Goodwyn's legislative career was heavily tied to education, along with unemployment and worker's compensation issues. In 1955, Goodwyn authorized an amendment to the state constitution that would have increased taxes in support of public education. In spite of support from Governor James Folsom, the voters soundly rejected the amendment. During the first administration of George Wallace (1963-67), Goodwyn served as floor manager in the House. Goodwyn coordinated and promoted the administrations legislative wishes. In 1966, reapportionment resulted in two places for Montgomery County in the State Senate. Goodwyn ran and was elected to one of the newly created seats. His term in the State Senate coincided with the term of Governor Lurleen Wallace. With the endorsement of both Governor Wallace and her husband/former governor, Goodwyn was selected as president pro-tempore of the State Senate. Following the death of Governor Wallace on May 7, 1968, Goodwyn became acting lieutenant governor when Albert Brewer became acting governor.

Throughout his legislative career, Goodwyn maintained his legal practice with Smith and Bowman. During his re-election campaigns, a significant amount of criticism was directed at Goodwyn for the amount of state business that came the way of his firm. Goodwyn, however, was not the only member of his firm with political connections. Maury Smith served as campaign manager for Lurleen Wallace in 1966. Goodwyn's political connections along with his friendly gregarious manner resulted in his being elected as president of the Montgomery Bar Association in 1964. During Goodwyn's career in the State Senate, he maintained his interest in education and worker's compensation. Following his first term, Goodwyn ran for election as lieutenant governor in his own right. Jere Beasley defeated him. Goodwyn was honored, however, by a senate resolution recognizing his fairness and leadership abilities during his Senate service. After his defeat in the lieutenant governor race, Goodwyn was named legal counsel for the Alabama Education Association on February 1, 1971. In 1972, Goodwyn was stricken with Lou Gehrig's Disease. Following surgery for an ulcer, Goodwyn succumbed to the effects of the disease and died on July 26, 1973.

The collection contains correspondence, case files, legislation, publications, newspaper clippings, reports, lectures, proclamations notes, speeches and photographs pertaining to O.J. Goodwyn's legislative career. The materials within the collection date primarily from 1952 until 1970, though there are some exceptions on items from 1930 to as late as 1995.

The papers covering Goodwyn's legislative career pertain primarily to the years during his service as President Pro Tempore of the State Senate. However, documents covering his service in the House date back to the 1950s are included. Goodwyn's interest in education is well documented in this collection. Of particular interest are the files relating to education, and specifically those pertaining to Goodwyn's 1955 constitutional amendment permitting increased taxation in support of education. Also of note is Goodwyn's involvement with and membership in educationally-focused groups such as the Alabama Educational Study Commission and the Southern Region Education Board.

Materials relating to the civil rights are rather limited. Apart from individual letters in the correspondence files, the majority of information relating to Goodwyn's involvement with Civil Rights can be found in the newspaper clippings files, specifically in the files on Desegregation and Macon County (see also the legal file on the City of Montgomery vs. Montgomery City Lines case). Goodwyn was involved with legislation to establish a "whites only" bus line as a result of the success of the Montgomery Bus Boycott. Goodwyn was also involved in a conference with Federal Judge Frank M. Johnson concerning a segregated bus line, although his involvement is only briefly mentioned in newspaper clippings.

Goodwyn's involvement with Macon County and Civil Rights also appears only in clippings, and not in documents in the collection. Goodwyn was appointed to a committee to monitor the situation in Macon County and to consider dissolving the County to prevent a black majority. While some of Goodwyn's activities appear to paint him as a racist patina, it should also be noted that Goodwyn was also a supporter of legislation prohibiting discrimination based upon race in public education. In addition to civil rights, general political matters are missing from the collections. While Goodwyn has correspondence from Govs. Folsom, Persons, Patterson, Wallace and Brewer, all cover general matters. The lack of detailed correspondence from the Wallace's is particularly interesting, given the prominence in which Goodwyn displayed in both their administrations.

Perhaps the areas in which the most information can be gleaned on Goodwyn's political opinions can be found in the general correspondence files. These files contain letters on a variety of subjects, ranging from personal, to political, to legislative. The letters provide examples of the community opinions on important legislative issues. Again, it is interesting to note the lack of correspondence focusing upon the civil rights issues in this portion of the collection.

Final items of interest are the files on Auburn University at Montgomery. Goodwyn sponsored the legislation creating a four-year college in Montgomery that became AUM. Introduced in the waning days of the 1967 legislative session, Goodwyn guided the legislation through in only five days. The materials in the subject file include correspondence from local Chamber of Commerce leaders and President Philpott of Auburn University.

Arrangement

The papers are arranged into the following series:

Series I: Personal

Sub series 1. General

Folders: 1-22

Arranged alphabetically by folder title.

The material in this sub series includes general personal files consisting of school records, biographical information, certificates and awards, social organizations and photographs of Senator O.J. Goodwyn.

Sub series 2. Correspondence

Folders: 23-46

Arranged alphabetically by correspondent.

Correspondence includes personal, political and legislative correspondence. Among the legislative correspondents are prominent Montgomerians such as Fontaine Howard, Jack Cappell and Vaughn Hill Robison. Also included are letters from Governors James Folsom, Gordon Persons, John Patterson, George Wallace, Lurleen Wallace and Albert Brewer. Of interest is a letter from the "Montgomery Citizen's Council" urging Goodwyn to take action and preserve the "southern way of life," and a letter from Paul "Bear" Bryant.

Sub series 3. Family Papers

Folders: 47-49

Arranged alphabetically by family member name.

Consists of correspondence and papers from Mary Chalmers Hair Goodwyn (Goodwyn's wife) and children Otis James Jr. and Susan.

Sub series 4. Election Materials

Folders: 50-54

Arranged alphabetically by folder title.

Divided into material including expense accounts, propaganda and speeches, and election results from 1955 and 1958.

Series II: Legal

Sub series 1. Legal Materials

Folders: 55-70

Arranged alphabetically by folder title.

Consists of Goodwyn's license to practice as an attorney, legal correspondence, correspondence and forms from various legal organizations. Of note is the letter from Goodwyn's wife to Frank Broadway, turning over the firm's files to Broadway following Senator Goodwyn's death. Also included are billing statements for the law firm and three audit statements for 1966.

Sub series 2. Case Files

Folders: 71-136

Arranged alphabetically by folder title

Consists of legal case files for Goodwyn's firm. Of particular interest is the case file of the City of Montgomery vs. Montgomery City Lines, dealing with segregated buses.

Sub series 3. Legal Lectures

Folders: 137-144

Arranged chronologically by date of lectures, and there under alphabetically by title.

Consists of transcriptions of legal lectures from Goodwyn's classes at the University of Alabama law school. These lectures were used to form the basis of his own lectures to law students at Jones School of Law in Montgomery.

Series III. Legislative Career

Sub series 1. Subject Files

Folders: 145-211

Arranged alphabetically by subject

Consists of subjects of interest to Goodwyn during his legislative career. Of note are the files relating to education, Auburn University at Montgomery, ethics, the Public Service Commission, and speeches given by Goodwyn on legislative issues.

Sub series 4. Associations, Committees, and Commissions

Folders: 319-381

Arranged alphabetically by file heading

Includes correspondence, reports and minutes for organizations of which Goodwyn was a member. Goodwyn served on a number of committees and commissions based upon appointment by the governor or by his position in the state legislature as President Pro Tempore. Of particular interest are the files of the Alabama Educational Study Commission and the Southern Regional Education Board. Also of interest are the records from the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, appointed during the first term of Governor George Wallace. The Council of State Governments contains information on issues of concerns to legislatures throughout the country.

Series IV. News Clippings

Folders: 382-450

Arranged alphabetically by folder heading.

Includes notebooks containing clippings from 1963-69, as well as, specific subject headings files on specific issues. Of notes are the files pertaining to Auburn University at Montgomery, corruption, desegregation, drunk driving, Federal control of schools, the Goodwyn Constitutional Amendment of 1955 to raise taxes for public schools, Macon County (concerning the possible dissolution of the county to prevent a black majority from taking over the government), the Rev. Ralph Abernathy's Poor People's March to Montgomery and the Public Service Commission investigation. Also included are obituaries for Senator Goodwyn.
